References

Pazhueshaye Zabanshenasi (Journal of Researches in Linguistics) adheres to (APA) (American Psychological Association) style.

Books:

Author's surname followed by comma and initials (and full points), with a word space between two or more initials

Authors' initial comes after first surname, but for books with more than one author the initials come first on second, third, etc. authors

The date of book is in roman, and inside the parenthesis, followed by a full point

Authors with two books in same year should be labelled a and b (immediately after date, no space)

Book titles in italic; main words have initial capitals

The main words in book titles have initial caps, including subtitles

Examples:

Langacker, R. W. (2008). Cognitive Grammar: A Basic Introduction. Oxford: Oxford University Press.

Horn, L. R. and Ward, G. (eds.) (2004). The Handbook of Pragmatics. Oxford: Black Publishing.

Articles:

Titles of journal articles in Roman with single inverted commas

First word only has initial caps except for names

Full stop before final inverted comma (for journal articles)

If an entry is a paper from an edited collection, put the title in Roman with single inverted commas but no full point after, then 'in'

Journal titles in italic; main words have initial capitals

Check that all details have been included: volume, issue (if available), page numbers. See the examples below for style.
